READY FOR HORSE SHOW OPENING.

Brilliant Society Gathering Expected at Annual Event in Coliseum To-Night.

MANY FOUR-IN-HAND ENTRIES.

Though the List of Foreign Exhibitors Is Strong, St. Louis Will Make a Good Showing.

The fourth annual St. Louis Horse Show will open to-night at the Collseum under the most favorable nuspices. Not only will famous exhibitors from all parts of country show strings of blooded animals, but St. Louis society has indersed the show, and the boxes and reserved seats for the opening night are greatly in demand.

The rings, beginning at $ o'clock, with readster pairs, include some interesting cards. Thoroughbred animals with which the public is familiar will compete for the blue ribbons with others, that, while not well known to St. Louis horse lovers, have country-wide reputations, gained in Chicago, New York and other noted ex-

What will perhaps prove the most at tractive ring of the evening will be judg ing four-in-hand road teams. Hitherte four or five entries has been considered good field, but to-night the patrons of the Horse Show will be afforded the unusual spectacle of nine teams in action.

The rules for this ring require that the teams be shown before a coach or body brake, the borses to count 50 per cent and the appointments 50 per cent.

St. Louis will have four entries, and although the teams entered by George Palmer of Denver, Colo., and M. H. Tichefavor, the local tournouts will be a decided factor in the competition.

John S. Bratton will be a competitor and the claims of A. A. Busch to the blue ribbon are considered by many authorities on blooded horseflesh to be well founded.

founded.

Aside from the horses, the feature of the opening night will be the brilliantly gowned women that will add the necessary dash of color, without which the annual Horse Show would not hold the position it does.

BLOODED HORSES TO SHOW.

Men and women, prominent in the social world, have signified their intention of attending and the event gives every indication of being the most successful show held in St. Louis.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 1.—The senior class of Missouri University gave a masquerade party last night in the ladies' parlors of Academic Hall, and it was attended by practically every member of this year's large graduating class.

The dignified seniors appeared in every variety of costume. There were sallors from the Philippines, rough riders from ance of an order issued by the officers of the alliance to-day.

The trouble arose from a three-cornered fight between the Exposition officials, the pumbers and the steamfitters. W. J. Spencer, secretary-treasurer of the alliance, was in consultation with President Huber and Secretary Duffy of the Brotherhood of Carpenters to-day, and urging them to hasten to St. Louis to effect a settlement, but neither can go on account of their engagements.

I. S. Taylor, Director of Works, said last night that he anticipated some trouble to-day between the plumbers and the steamfitters, who were working on the clascade but he expressed the opinior that the matter would be amicably settled. He declared that the differences were not caused on account of the wage scale, but because of the differences of the two The Indians have been with Pawner Rosebud and Valentine agencies in South the precaution of the Police Department was the conduct of the red men at Pana, Pana was the last stand made by Pawnee Bill's show. To celebrate the event a number of the younger braves, with the assistance of coal miners in the town, procured a quantity of whisky. Before they left the citizens became terrorized and the timid sought shelter. After departing the Indians took charge of the coach they were in and became unmanageable. They wandered to other parts of the train and made trouble all the way from Pana to St. Louis.

At 1 o'clock last night Acting Night Chief Lally received a telegram from Pana stating that the Indians were on the train. Request was made that a squad of policemen be sent to the station to insure peace on the Midway. Eight policemen met the Big Four train when it arrived shortly after 4 o'clock and took charge of the entire party. The firewater and fight had died out of the belligerent braves, however, and no trouble was ex-perienced in conducting them to the second-class waiting-room.

The task of preventing the young braves from going from the waiting-room to the buffet at the farther end of the Midway was not an easy one. All day Agency, South Dakota Little Big Horn, where Custer fell, but vas with a detachment of braves farther down the river.

FOOTBALL PLAYER IN PARTY. John Hollow Horn, one of the young braves with the party, is a graduate of the Carlisle Indian School in Pennsylvania. He played substitute on the team which be came famous in the football world through Jonas Metoxen, Bemis Pierce and other doughty Indian gridiron warriors. He rejoiced over the close game the Carlisle Indians played Harvard on Saturday and made several pantomime kicks, illustrating how he used to handle the piggkin. John Hollow Horn can speak good English, but it is difficult to get him to do so Only when his old football team was mentioned did he throw aside his reserve and talk freely. He had the make-up of a creditable guard or tackle for any team. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 200 pounds.

O matter what type of mind you have, you will find something to interest you in Harpers Magazine for November.

Simon Newcomb, LL. D., the great scientist, forecasts the probable scientific discoveries of the twentieth century.

R. S. Baker tells of the discoveries of Professor Nobbe of Germany, which show how the soil can now be rendered productive by inoculating it with microbes, and that air, not soil, feeds plants.

Henry Loomis Nelson gives a vivid account of the adventures of Champlain. Sydney Brooks tells entertainingly of London as seen from a 'bus top, and E.S. Martin writes charmingly of "The Country in Winter." Prof. Flinders Petrie tells of his discoveries of statues 6,500 years old in Egypt. Brander Matthews writes on American Epigrams.

EIGHT SHORT STORIES

There are short stories of every sort. Among the writers are Margaret Deland, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, Marie van Vorst and Philip Verrill Mighels. There are more than 160 pages —fiction, science, travel, literature, archæology, history, humor, nature, child life.

Mrs. Julia Martin Assaulted Near Her Home by Unidentified Persons.

INJURIES MAY PROVE FATAL.

Neighbors Attracted by Child's Screams Find Mrs. Martin on the Sidewalk, Unconscious.

Within fifty feet of her home, Mrs. Julia Martin of No. 2808 Stoddard street was probably fatally burned last night as the result of having carbolic acid thrown upon her by an unidentified person. Mrs. Martin, with her 5-year-old niece, Esther McIntyre, had gone to a bakery on Easton avenue. Returning, they were met by a man and woman just as the were going around the corner of Stoddard and Leffingwell avenue. One of the latter threw the acid from a two-ounce bottle, which was afterwards found. Mrs. Martin fell to the sidewalk unconscious, badly burned about the neck, breast and arms. Her little niece began to scream. Mrs. Frank Horton of No. 2800 Stoddard avenue, heard her screams.

Looking out of the window, she saw Mrs. Martin lying on the sidewalk. Opening the window she smelled the strong fumes of the carbolic acid. She did not recognize Mrs. Martin and thought that some one had attempted suicide.

Mrs. Horton called her husband and he went out with his wife. They at once recognized the woman as Mrs. Martin. Mr. Horton carried her into her own home, three doors distant and summoned Doctor John C. Falk of No. 2700 Stoddard street. Mrs. Martin was unconscious. Mrs. Martin's clothing was torn from her body as the acid-saturated goods were burning Doctor Falk attended her and pronounced her injuries serious. The acid was very strong and in all cases had burned deep into the skin. Neighbors think that after the acid was thrown. Mrs. Martin must have been struck to the ground by her as-

Mrs. Martin was unconscious for most of the night. All she could remember about the occurrence was that she saw the acid was going to be thrown, and she put her hand in front of her face. For this rea-son her face was not burned. The hand which she placed in front of her face was badly injured.

Neighbors have strong suspicions as to who the acid thrower was. They believe that after Mrs. Martin becomes conscious she will be able to establish his identity. Two years ago Mrs. Martin was married. Her married life was not happy. Several months ago her husband, Frank Martin, left her

He applied for a divorce. She crosses the charges, and was awarded alimony, in the Circuit Court. Neighbors state that he became incensed when he was forced to pay alimony.
